

Please Don't Drink the Water

Please don't drink the water
Even when you're thirsty inside
Please don't drink the water
Just heed my advice

When you travel across the world, you're blessed
Seeing new things and the rest
Eating new foods is delightful
Even when things seem frightful
If you need some advice, don't think twice
Make sure it's bottled up nice (refrain)

Trying different foods is exotic
Goat brain soup, is quixotic.
But the fruit looks so tempting
Vegetables so inviting
But if they're washed up like home, leave 'em alone
Or off to the bathroom you'll roam (refrain)

It's no fun to stay in your room
When your outlook is gloom and doom
Your friends all leave for the shopping
While you take meds for the stopping
So if you want to feel good, don't eat wet food and you'll be in a better mood. (refrain)

One of the tasks of my writing has been to make sure that I don't take myself so seriously. While it may be true that much of my music raises serious questions about serious issues, I do think it is important to step back and realize the silliness of life itself. This song was written as a spoof on staying healthy while you travel. I have been fortunate, so far, but I have witnessed those with troubles. It really isn't fun! So be careful! Ha!
